Unionists Will Support Government Until Peace-Then Will Aid Ulsterites.

LONDON, Sept. 15. - (Associated Press).—Lord Lansdowne, the opposi-tion leader in the House of Lords, introduced his bill yesterday to suspend until after the war the proceedings on the Home Rule bill and the Walsh Disestablishment bill. It was read for the first time. Lord Lansdowne declared he would continue to support he Government loyally in the present

At a meeting of the Unionist party, beld yesterday, it was decided that the only speaker on the Asquith bill in the House of Commons to this same end will be A. Bonar Law, the Union-let leader. The leaders present at the Unionist meting were of the opinion that in the present crisis it is indispensable that the Government should be supported on questions of internal

In a speech at a Unionist meeting seterday afternoon Mr. Law declared hat however bitter the Unionist recontinent might be they had to re-member that country came before party and that nothing the Govern-ent had done would change in any speci their action in regard to the ar and everything connected with

When the war was over, however, later could depend upon their sup-ors in whatever steps the Ulster-an thought necessary to maintain hir rights.

We've Reduced Our Satin and ... Serge-and-Satin Dresses to . .

They are regular $15 grades - most of them-pretty Only our desire to make this Anniversary Sale memorable would bring these dresses down to this price so early in the season. Take the two models sketched as examples.

In one a clever designer placed a braid-edged serge tunic over a black satin underskirt, and over the serge bodice he placed a sleeveless satin jacket, pointed in front and tied low in the back by a sash. But the eleverest touch is the tailored collar and cuff set that comes with it, detachable for aundering.

The other is a bit dressier-a satin with pleated overtunic; the waist corded in front and held by a row of cut jet

Many Delightful Styles-Women's and Misses' Sizes

Too many styles to tell you of each-but all are fashionable in the newest variations—Basque, Moyen Age and waist-line models, some with sashes trying back or front-others with crushed girdles, or "ladder" tucks up the Moore materials are wool crepe and satin, poplins and silks. Many have charming details of silk collars and vestees. At $11.95 they are simply wonderful.
